QUESTION 3

Tony Stark owns and runs a large medical research facility, Stark Corporation which as part of its work, tests pharmaceuticals on rats. This makes both Stark Corporation and Tony unpopular with several animal rights campaigners. Lois Lane is an animal rights campaigner. Whilst she is shopping at D'Pulze Mall, she sees Tony and recognises him. In a fit of anger, she screams at him "Murderer! Destroyer of tiny fluffy lives!" Many shoppers hear this outburst. Subsequently, Lois Lane who writes for a large national newspaper decides to write an article about Tony Stark Corporation. In that article, she asserts that Tony engages in widespread embezzlement within the company, taking money from the company's pension fund. Lois Lane knows that this is untrue as she invented the story. Finally, she writes another article for an online blog, stating that under Tony Stark's leadership, Stark Corporation has been failed in rating during its last animal welfare inspection due to abuse of animals. Advise Tony if he can bring a defamation action against Lois Lane. Discuss all the elements involved and defences to his action, if any.
